Background

On October 9, 2007, we published a 90-day finding on a petition to list the black-footed albatross as threatened or endangered (72 FR 57278). In that 90-day finding, we found that the petition presented substantial scientific or commercial information indicating that listing the black-footed albatross may be warranted. We also initiated a status review to determine if listing the species is warranted, and announced a 60-day public information solicitation period on the petition finding and status review, which ended on December 10, 2007.

We received two requests for an extension of the information solicitation period in order to allow agencies and interested persons the opportunity to provide additional information for our consideration during this status review. In particular, these requests were based on the anticipated publication of a formal status assessment of the black-footed (and Laysan) albatross by the U.S. Geological Survey, Biological Resources Discipline (USGS-BRD). This status assessment is now available to the public for review (<http://pubs.usgs.gov/sir/2009/5131/>). The USGS-BRD Status Assessment of Laysan and Black-footed Albatrosses provides a synthesis and review of all existing data and other information about the species, including an assessment of fishery-related mortality and statistical models of the population status and trajectory. This assessment, along with other information provided by the public and reviewers on the 90-day petition finding, will be an important source of information for the status review and 12-month finding on the black-footed albatross.

It is important to note that the standard for “substantial information” indicating that the petitioned action may be warranted for a 90-day finding is in contrast to the 12-month finding that determines whether a petitioned action is warranted. A 90-day finding is not a status assessment of the species and does not constitute a status review under the Act. Our final determination as to whether a petitioned action is warranted is not made until we have completed a thorough status review of the species, which is conducted following a positive 90-day finding. Because the Act’s standards for 90-day and 12-month findings are different, as described above, a positive 90-day finding does not mean that the 12-month finding also will be positive.

Authority

The authority for this action is the Endangered Species Act of 1973, as amended (16 U.S.C. 1531 et seq.).

Dated: August 17, 2009.

Dan Ashe,

Acting Director, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.
